RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 34 pages. Original publisher: Portland, Or. : Northwest Power Planning Council, 2000 OCLC Number: (OCOlc)182847800 Subject: Fish populations -- Northwest, Pacific -- Databases. Excerpt: . . . ISRP 2000-3 Database Review (in some fields this synthesis is itself a formal activity called meta-analysis), and new computer technologies that are making access and analysis practical. The result is the dawning emergence of a new web culture of open data access and open invitation to independent re-analysis and alternative-analysis. We consider this new culture a healthy development that will encourage quicker analysis, more powerful analyses, better documentation, and hopefully, easier scientific consensus. All these considerations bear on the data generated with funding from the Columbia Basin Fish and Wildlife Program. We recommend adoption of a policy requiring that the reporting requirements for projects funded by the program include requirements for delivery of primary data, and their associated metadata, in a standard machine readable format, within a specified period of time. Compliance with this policy should be a condition for continued funding. Figure 2. Data Archive Primary Data Archive w: ex fish Metadata Adult Counts Figure 2. Data Archive. Primary data and their associated metadata are stored in a data archive. In a distributed data system (see following figures) the data archive has a unique Internet address through which its contents are accessed. DATA ARCHIVING Data archiving is the compilation of primary, measured data and associated metadata (Figure 2). This is done in a single facility under a quality assurance quality control (QA QC) process with provisions for maintaining data integrity for some class of data. There must be consensus among all the parties that generate data of this class that this archive...
