Somehow this message will find its way into the hands of that one person that the Lord wants to encourage and bless! It seems that in this life everyone has their trials, tribulations and life lessons that the Lord sets before you. If you want to be used of the Lord, then you must listen, learn and take a step of faith. For Cheryl, it seemed that every experience in her life somehow worked together to bring her to this place. Looking back, she could see that the Lord orchestrated every experience to work for her good. Along the way, through difficult times and exciting times, she had questions that weighed heavy with emotion. While sitting at a kitchen counter one day during one of these times, pen and paper in hand, she started writing to the Lord. By the time she came to the end she had an answer. Though the writings were personal it became evident that the Lord used these writings to help others who could relate to the circumstance. It was through these writings that lessons have been learned. Though encouraged by her daughter and family to share these writings there was always something that held her back. Then just at that perfect moment a friend told her how one of her poems had helped someone who was hurting. Someway the Lord will use this book to Let a Sorrowful Heart Sing!
